Representatives of Royal Veterinary College

Of all aspects of equine research, issues with the foot and lower limb need more attention. Why shouldn't the professional most responsible for equine footsore help drive these critical studies?

In this webinar, representatives from the Royal Veterinary College will discuss their new graduate diploma in Equine Locomotor Research. This program offers farriers the opportunity to gain skills and experience introducing original research to increase evidence-based farriery and enhance equine welfare. They will also address why the farrier who graduates from their program will be prepared to continue to contribute to advancing our understanding of the horse.
